5. The company's services are renewed from time to time and as long as the user has not given the company notice of cancellation of the service, this will be considered as consent to the continued provision of the service and the existence of the contract. Moreover, as long as the user makes use of the company's services and pays with one of the means of payment that the company supplies, this will also be regarded as consent to the continued existence of the contract.

Annex A – Terms and Conditions for Various Services

1. Payment account

1. Upon joining a service, the company will open a personal account in the user's name, which will be identified according to the ID no. of the recipient of the service with whom it was registered. The account will be used by the user for accumulating sums of money to his credit. The balance of the account appears on the site under the title 'My balance' or any other name that will be determined from time to time.
2. Each user may open only one personal account.
3. The opening of an account will only be possible after completing the registration process, the making of identification, authentication and the scanning of documents, as well as the completion of a 'Know Your Customer' questionnaire insofar as one is needed, all of which according to the provisions of the law. Until the process is completed, the user will not be able to act in the account.
4. The opening of the account and the performance of certain operations are conditional on entering user details and identification by receiving a SMS message to the user's mobile number (OTP). The user is responsible for keeping the means of payment and the essential component of the means of payment completely confidential, separate and in a manner that is inaccessible to others. In any case where there is a concern of theft and/or loss of a part of the essential component or misuse of the account, the customer is required to notify the company immediately and act in accordance with the company's instructions.
5. The deposit of money into the payment account may be done, inter alia, in the following ways: cash, credit card, bank transfer or transfer from a payment account of another customer.
6. In the payment account, the customer will be allowed to perform the operations that will be determined from time to time according to the provisions of the law.

7. As a rule, the operations will be performed on the basis of the credit balance that exists in the account. If the customer does not have a credit balance in the account, the customer will be allowed to pay the balance required for performing the operation with a debit card, a transfer to the company's account or the receipt of a loan from the company, according to the terms that will be determined by the company from time to time.
8. The user is responsible for monitoring all the operations recorded in the payment account continuously and regularly. In cases where the user has objections and/or queries about one or more of the operations or amounts documented in his account, he should contact customer service immediately and without delay, no later than 30 days from the performance of the operation to which he wishes to object, unless another time is determined by law.
9. The site allows you to view at any time the operations that were performed in the account. The balance in the account will be displayed according to the type of currency available in the account (shekels and/or foreign currency).
10. Moreover, additional actions will be displayed according to the company's decision and the provisions of the law. The user knows that in the charge statements of the credit card company, the company may appear as the business receiving the payment, even if the transaction was made with another party. It is also possible that an operation will appear both in the details of transfers on the site and in the reports of the credit card companies.
11. Liability in a case of misuse of payment services:
 1. If an essential component is misused or lost, the user should give immediate notice thereof to the company. In a case of misuse that will be made after a notice is given on behalf of the user to the company as aforesaid, no liability whatsoever will be imposed on the user.
 2. Before notice is given as aforesaid, the company will be entitled to charge the user for payment operations made before the delivery of the notice or according to the amounts determined by law, whichever is lower, as follows:
 1. A fixed amount of NIS 75, plus NIS 30 for each day that passed between the date on which the user became aware of the loss or misuse until the date of giving the notice. Notwithstanding the aforesaid, if the notice is given within 30 days of the date on which misuse was first made on the site, the amount of the charge will not exceed NIS 450.
 2. The amount of the payment transfers that were actually made.

The aforesaid amounts change from time to time according to law, and the company is not responsible for updating the user regarding every change, but each change will apply without a need for notice.

0. Sections 1.10.1 and 1.10.2 will not apply to a payment that was transferred before the giving of a notice by the user in cases where the user transferred the essential component to another person, whether the use was made with his knowledge or not, unless the essential component was made available to the other person in reasonable circumstances for the purpose of safekeeping only or was made available to a beneficiary for the purpose of making a payment order through the beneficiary or the misuse was made after the essential component that was made available to the other person was stolen from that person or lost by him.

0. Receipts and use of accrued balance:

1. A user who received a payment to the account will in most cases be credited immediately with the amount that was transferred to his account, unless it is a payment transfer that deviates from the terms of use or requires additional checks or operations according to any law or at the company's discretion and these terms and conditions.
2. The operations that the user may carry out with the amount accrued in the account, according to his choice, are as follows:
 1. Withdrawing the accrued amount or a part thereof to a bank account or transferring it to any other account according to the transfers that are permitted by the company from time to time.
 2. Loading his reloadable card with the balance.
 3. Leaving the amount in the account and making payments with it in the future.

0. Keeping the money in the account at the company:

Without derogating from the aforesaid, the money kept in the user's account will be subject to the following provisions:

1. The funds will be kept in the account for an unlimited time, until the date when the customer wishes to withdraw the money or give any other instructions, according to any law, regarding an operation with the money, which the company will be entitled to perform for the customer. The end of the period of depositing the money will be on the date of the withdrawal of all the money deposited in the deposit account.
2. Separate account – the money will be held for the customers in a separate account from the account of the company's current operations.
3. Entitlement to interest – it is clarified that no interest will be paid to the customer for the money deposited in the account, whether in his account with the company or in any other account. The company may change the terms of the deposit in a notice to the customer after obtaining his consent.

4. Offset and lien – without derogating from any right of the company under the agreements and/or under any law, the company will have a full right of offset and lien over the money in the account and/or the account and/or the customer's rights vis-à-vis the company for any undertaking and/or debt of the customer to the company, whether severally or jointly with others, whether the customer's undertaking or debt was created in the past or will be created in the future, and all the customer's rights regarding the money in the account and in general will be subject to the company's right of lien and/or offset.
5. Transfer, assignment or charge – the money deposited in the account may not be transferred, assigned or charged unless the company gave its prior written consent thereto.
6. The company may determine and update from time to time the operation thresholds for the transfer and receipt of payments and for a maximum balance in the account.

Additional terms and conditions for a business entity

1. 'Business entity' – a beneficiary or payer who is an individual, a company, a partnership, an association (amuta) or any other legal entity whose economic activity is intended for the running of a business, which uses the company's services within the framework of any business activity and entered into an agreement with the company directly or indirectly for the receipt or transfer of money through the company's services.

The terms and conditions of this chapter apply to any business entity that uses the company's services, including for receiving payments from other users for services or products provided or supplied by it or for transferring payments to its suppliers, customers or other parties and for any other business or commercial purpose.

The terms and conditions of this chapter do not derogate from the General Terms and Conditions or what is stated in the Privacy Policy, but they apply to a business entity in addition to all the terms and conditions that appear in the Terms and Conditions and the Privacy Policy. In any case of a conflict between what is stated in this chapter and what is stated in the Terms and Conditions and the Privacy Policy, for a business entity only, what is stated in this chapter will prevail.

0. The company will be entitled to demand that any user that is a business entity and uses the company's services in its business will notify the company of this and that it is registered as a business entity. If there will be changes in the user's activity such that it ceases to be a business entity or begins to act as a business entity, it should give the company notice of the change immediately.

0. The company will be entitled to demand additional details from a business entity about its fields of operations, the owners of the rights, its officers that are authorized to act on its behalf, its customers, suppliers and any other additional detail that the company sees fit to request at its discretion and according to the provisions of the law. The company may demand information, documents or any paperwork to authenticate the details that were requested and it will be entitled to demand, from time to time, additional details about the user's business operations at its discretion.

0. When using the company's services, the business entity undertakes that its business use will be reasonable and in good faith, for the purpose of its operations in the ordinary course of its business, and it will refrain from any breach or harm to any other person or user of the site, including harm to the company.

0. The business entity waives in advance any claim against the company for a transaction that was canceled, not performed or not completed with another user, payer or recipient, where the transfer of the payment for that transaction was delayed because of the company's demand for the investigation of additional details as aforesaid. It should be emphasized that receipts that were withheld because of this will not bear any interest and the company will not pay any additional payment for them until the end of the investigation and the crediting of the business entity.

0. The business entity will provide the company with full and correct details and should cooperate with the company in full.

0. The company may determine that above a certain amount of periodic activity of the business entity or for any other reason that the company will think fit, the use of the company's services will also be conditional, in addition to all of the above, on the signing of a detailed agreement between the company and the business entity and/or with the clearer of transactions with debit cards.

0. In cases where the company entered into an agreement with the business entity as aforesaid or determined special contractual terms with it, these will apply in addition to any agreement and in addition to these terms and conditions. If there is a conflict between the Terms and Conditions, on the one hand, and the agreements and the special contractual terms, on the other, the provisions of the agreements and the special contractual terms will prevail.

0. The company may terminate or limit the operations of the business entity with the company's services, including limiting the scope, number and amount of the operations at its sole discretion as published from time to time.

0. Without derogating from the provisions of the company's Privacy Policy, and for the purpose of minimizing the risks involved in providing service to a business entity (that provides service to its customers), the company will be entitled to use information for statistical processing and various analyses subject to the provisions of any law. Without derogating from the aforesaid, the business entity waives any claim of ownership over information relating to transactions made by paying users with it or that it made with recipient users for which the payment was paid through the company and/or the site, and agrees in advance to any use that will be made according to the provisions of the law and the protections granted to the various users and its customers.

0. In order to prevent claims regarding transactions that are made with a defective document, the company requires the use of an enhanced authentication item for transactions made through it (which authenticates the identity of the payer with a high degree of certainty, as the comp will determine from time to time (including an additional password, the use of biometric means of identification, two-stage verification, etc.)). In view of this, and according to the provisions of the Payment Services Law, 5779-2019 (hereinafter: 'the Payment Services Law'), insofar as the business entity will not do so, it will be liable for any amount that will be paid to a paying user because of claims of misuse or fraud, a change of a charge without authorization or a payment operation with a defective document. Moreover, the company may refuse to perform or may suspend the performance of the transaction insofar as the user did not provide the details of the enhanced identification according to the company's rules.

0. In cases where a transaction is canceled, the company will be entitled to charge the business entity an amount of money that will constitute liquidated damages for damage that will be caused as a result of the cancellation of the transaction and for additional expenses and costs according to the company's pricelist, without prejudice to and/or derogating from other remedies available to the company under any law.

0. The cancellation of a transaction between a business entity and a paying user or a recipient user for which payment was made through the company's services applies in the sphere of the legal relationship between the parties to the transaction only, according to the terms of the contract between the parties and the law that applies to the cancellation of a transaction relating to the engagement, and the company is not a party to this agreement. The company will not be liable for the cancellation of a transaction of some kind or other and will not be liable for restitution or cancellation of any payment that was made in connection with a transaction that was canceled except according to the provisions of the Payment Services Law. It is hereby clarified that the business entity will indemnify the company for any demand or claim made against it in connection with this matter.

0. The business entity is solely responsible for the contracts made with it in the field of the relationship between it and its customers in connection with transactions in which the company's services are used for making payments, including for any service or product that it sold and supplied and for any transaction whatsoever and for the nature, quality, proper functioning, suitability and supply of the service or product. The business entity is responsible for any claim or legal proceeding that will be filed by its customer or any party to a transaction that is made with the business entity in connection therewith.

0. The business entity may not refuse to refund to a paying user or a recipient user a payment that was made through the company's services merely because it was paid through the company's services as aforesaid. Moreover, the business entity may not refuse to exchange a product solely for this reason alone as aforesaid. If a claim will be made by a paying user or a recipient user against the company because of a refusal of such a kind, it is hereby clarified that the company will regard the business entity as solely responsible for this.

0. The business entity hereby undertakes that the terms in the business sphere between it and its customers or between it and any other third party, for which payments are made through the company's services, will not contradict these terms and conditions, and in any case of a conflict, the terms and conditions and any other binding document between the company and the business entity will prevail.

0. The business entity is well aware that transactions for products or services that are made through the company's services are sales or service transactions that are governed by the laws of the State of Israel and the laws of any other relevant country that relate to a buyer, seller or a business in a specific transaction, including, but not limited to, the Sale Law, 5728-1968, and the Consumer Protection Law, 5741-1981.

0. The business entity hereby declares that it has a file at the tax authority and reports on its operations according to law, including the operations that are performed through the company's services.

0. The business entity is well aware of the obligations under the law relating to the issuance of invoices or receipts and delivering them to its customers for transactions that were made between them. It should be clarified that the responsibility for compliance with these obligations rests solely and completely with the business entity, including all the reports required under any law, including for deducting VAT or withholding tax at source.

0. The company and any organ acting on its behalf are not liable for any claim, complaint or demand of any kind relating to damage, loss or expense deriving directly or indirectly from disputes that will arise between the business entity and another user or third party in connection with any transaction that used the company's services, whether the company or its organs were aware of the dispute or not.

0. It is hereby clarified that the business entity will be liable to indemnify the company for any expense, payment, loss or liability that will be imposed on it or caused to it or organs acting on its behalf in connection with transactions or contracts made by the business entity with any other user through the company's services, including, inter alia, regarding legal proceedings that will be filed against the company because of such transactions. The company has the right to take any action that it thinks fit and to raise any claim in order to defend itself against any demand, complaint or claim of any third party as aforesaid, including agreeing to any settlement or arrangement and filing a third-party notice against the business entity.

It should be emphasized that it is necessary to disconnect from the account before any transfer of the cellular device or the number with which the user registered for the service. For this purpose, you should contact the company’s customer service to transfer the account details to the new cellular number.
